

Bio:

Dario Arancibia is an honorary member of the Cuerpo de Socorro Andino (Chilean Mountain Rescue Team), where he has served for 20 years as an active volunteer and is currently the Technical Director of the Metropolitan section of the team. He participated in several search and rescues in the Central Andes and has also helped with rescues in Torres del Paine in Patagonia. Dario is a mountain climber and is currently the President of the Chilean Mountain Guide Association ACGM, and a director of the Technical Area of the “Comision de Seguridad en Montaña y Escalada” (Mountain Safety Commission). He lives with his family near the central Andes in Santiago de Chile, the capital of the country.